

2025 Student Award Winners

Congratulations to twelve students on receiving the 2025 American Chemical Society (ACS) Undergraduate Award for Excellence in Chemical Safety and Ethics!

This award recognizes graduating seniors in the chemical sciences who have actively demonstrated the connection between chemical safety and ethics. Chemical safety extends beyond mere compliance -- it is about fostering a culture of responsibility and integrity in the lab and beyond. This is the third annual award which is co-sponsored by the ACS Committee on Ethics and the ACS Division of Chemical Health and Safety.

Emily Barrett, Towson University

Maryam Batool, University of Sahiwal, Pakistan

Biftu Benti, South Dakota State University

Najda Bucan, Skidmore College

Carina Bustos, College of Saint Benedict

Cassandra Christian, University of Wisconsin – River Falls

Jack Dukart, Queen's University, Ontario, Canada

Jacqueline Heggen, University of Northern Iowa

Kely Juan, University of North Texas

Sophia Liu, University of Michigan

Megan Malecki, Millersville University

Delaney Smith, University of Virginia